It was reported from the Committee on Appropriations with a number of amendments, and the Senate proceeded to consider them. Mr. Hale moved that the House be informed that the Senate was ready to proceed to the consideration of the bill as amended by the Committee on Appropriations, and that the Senate proceed to consider the amendments reported by the committee. Mr. Hale explained briefly the amendments reported by the committee. Mr. Beck inquired whether the amendments proposed by the committee included the amendments proposed by the Secretary of the Navy in his report. Mr. Hale replied that they did not. Mr. Beck said that he was glad to hear it, as he was opposed to the Secretary's recommendations. Mr. Hale said that he was opposed to them also. Mr. Beck said that he was glad to hear that, too. Mr. Hale said that he was opposed to the Secretary's recommendations, and that the committee had not reported them

He is a staunch supporter of Logan.

The Chicago wheat market was active and excited yesterday, ranging ½ cent higher, but closing the same as Tuesday afternoon. Other products were more quiet and unchanged mess. Pork closed 3½c cash lower, held 50c cash lower, corn ¼ cash lower, cash ½ cent lower, and oats ½ cent higher. In wheat there was heavy selling of depots and selling by large, with incorporations engaged for a rather large quantity, but little just on spot business.

Parties having actual wishes in Virginia and Washington would do take a hand in Egyptian affairs. The Republican Presidential, which may be taken as reflecting Premier Ferry's views, says that the manner in which England has established herself in Egypt so upsets the Egyptian question. The Ohio Republican Convention which convened at Cincinnati yesterday will to all probability elect delegates-at-large who will cast a complimentary vote for Senator Sherman and then support Blaine. Garfield's friendship of State will be supported by Secretary of the District delegates from the start, and all but two of the Ohio delegation probably will vote for him on the second ballot. Considerable was alleged disposing confidence in the Republican party on appeal by President Arthur's product and on platform, administration or the selection of the public sale and the Legislature.

Administration of National affairs, including government, equal civil rights, a free and fair ballot, and maintaining the present tariffing system of Congress of electing, inducing and sustain. It is understood that the delegates-at-large will favor Edmunds of the Chicago Convention. The Arthur men acknowledging defeat, went over to the purchase of the Tremont Senator. The Republican delegates from the Empire State, according to the latest and most reliable information, will stand: Platten, 60; Arthur, 51; Edmunds, 11; undecided, 4. The most noticeable development of yesterday's convention was the utter want of the Arthur forces and the management surrender to Edmunds.

Tilden's oblivious reference in the letter to the Empire Club to the surrender of the Government to the control of a minority in 1876 under intimidation seems to have induced the Democratic papers to revive the "third term" for campaign purposes. It is a very old story, but perhaps it may not be out of place to remark briefly the plain facts. There was a dispute as to the Electoral count, after a long discussion, which it is needless to relate, and in the conviction that no settlement could be reached by Congress, a proposition was made to submit the term to a commission composed in part of members of Congress from both parties and judges of the Supreme Court. It is of special interest to recall that the proposition came from the Democratic side, and it was understood to have been instituted by Tilden himself, great events to control the support of Tilden's Democratic representatives in Congress and the country generally. It was resisted at the outset by some of the Republican leaders in the belief that the Democratic managers had practically arranged for a verdict in their favor. In all events, it was known that the constitution of the Supreme Court was such that Justice David Davis was pretty certain to be selected as the arbiter between the Democrats and the Republicans on the commission. Judge Davis' position in politics at that time foreshadowed a warrant for the belief that he would lean to the Democratic side of the dispute, and the Democrats were confident of carrying their point. But an event intervened which disturbed their arrangements. The Illinois Legislature would not agree upon a candidate for Gen. Logan in the United States Senate. The opposition to Logan in the Republican ranks was so bitter that he could not command a majority, and his adherents were so resolute in the belief that he would not consent to the choice of any other Republican. There was reason to believe that Farwell at one time and Lawrence at another could have secured enough Democratic votes to be elected if Logan's partisans had given way. But these and other efforts to elect a straight-out Republican failed, at last the Democrats procured the votes of David Davis, and he obtained enough of the Democratic united with the nine Democratic votes to elect him. This event relieved Judge Davis of the delicate and disagreeable responsibility of deciding the Electoral contest, for a Democratic chief of the Democratic party he felt that it would be improper for him to sit on the Electoral Commission as the arbiter between the contending parties, and he was personally relieved at the opportunity for retiring from the embarrassing position. The result was that the Democratic efforts to legitimately control for obtaining a decision in Tilden's favor miscarried by the act of the Democracy, but it was too late to withdraw from the agreement for a commission. The commission which had been set to submit to the Democrats proceeded with the work in hand, but the committee refused to "go behind the returns," and the Presidency was practically a dispute on the grounds urged by the Republicans. If there was any fraud in the arrangement originated with the Democratic managers who proposed it and urged it in the belief that they would have an advantage in the making of the committee. When they lost that advantage by the election of Judge Davis to the United States Senate their dissatisfaction was due to Democratic influences, which sought to make room of Judge Davis by electing him to the Senate. The whole scheme miscarried, but the Republicans had nothing to do with its inception nor with the event which defeated the machinations of the Democrats, who intended to settle the dispute with Tilden also, but succeeded their supposed advantage by a single attempt to make it doubly sure. It is very silly for the Democrats to talk of fraud in the Electoral Commission. The very fraud about it was arranged by their own managers and failed of its purpose. The fraud was aimed at the Judge and attempt to pack the jury by the Democrats, and their resentment was due not to fraud, but to the circumvention of fraud by their own acts.

The Republicans stalking in the South has been practiced to the interests of the Southern as against the negroes. Wherever the Republican party has been in the majority it has been disfranchised, as in Mississippi, South Carolina, Alabama, and other States, by every legislative device. Fraud that could be devised where the mass ballot was not secured by bulldozing, the dodgers, and actual violence. Stuffing the boxes in both, three-cent tickets, destruction of Republican tickets, false counts, and other outrages have been relied upon to secure Democratic victories and keep the South solid. The process was a safe one so long as the white population was swayed upon one side and the black population on the other, but the former controlled the polls, the count, the certificates of election, and the courts, while the latter were too ignorant to secure their rights by counsel, or even if they were the proof to contest had no court of appeal and no redress with which to set aside fraudulent elections. They were completely defeated from justice. Fairness or the courage might be, there was no method of redress open to them.

The outrage committed in the City of San Antonio Tuesday was of a different complexion. Wearied with the corrupt Southern ring rule and determined that it should not thrive on them, the decent Democrats of the city had united with the Republicans to break it, and unprecedented fairness appeared to assert itself. More than this, the Conservatives were to witness the opposition was defeated by two votes only applied, and the Negro was permitted to register and vote. In his parliamentary proceeding the ring had obtained control of the ballot-boxes. There was no check save fraud in the election. With one party was engaged in making the representation of the count, that number stuffed boxes a fair to include ballots into the boxes, which took the place of an equal number of opposition votes honestly cast, and then the election was carried for the ring almost before the count commenced. The injustice of these officials under the law citizens the election, even if no fraudulent votes had been counted into the boxes, but the deepest of the dividend is, that the only appeal for a courts which are under the domination of the ring. All avenues to justice appear to be closed.

Such an outrage, however, the world over perpetrated in the South, according to its audacity over the South Carolina Democratic ticket or the murderous methods of Capers, will not be allowed to pass unchallenged. In this case the citizens are not helpless supports with the entire white population around them, but white men, not a large number of them white Democrats, who will not be likely to submit tamely to such an outrage. Express can be dropped out of their rights with impunity, for they are too weak a numerical force, but white men will be apt to strike back. The upshot of the telegraphic report received this morning will be watched with interest.

The practice which the Union Pacific Directors have recently adopted of loading cars may be novel, but it cannot be too severely reprehended, whether as an element of danger to the girl who is loaded or to the community which does not know that she is loaded. Pure digestion in the London square must that it has become a common habit to load girls with dynamite and send them across the channel to London. It is stated that recently one girl was loaded with 200 pounds of the dangerous stuff and got across in safety, and that another girl has been sent to America to be loaded over here. If two girls can be loaded, of course twenty can, or 200—a possibility which is likely to make heavier this summer appearance of new Issue as questionable, and inclined to dive outlooking such opportunities, and still more astonishing the dangerous loaded Empire Executives.

The public cannot too soon protest against this practice of loading girls with the most dangerous explosive substance yet invented, and giving them safe transit to Europe by one or both, and if the practice is continued by the reckless dynamiters it should surely insist that the girls when loaded should be examined with the air holes that, strongly hinged, and marked "dangerous" in large letters. In any event it should be considered no perfectly justifiable by the laws of elegant to a stranger to ask any girl who approaches him or lingers about in her vicinity if she is loaded, and, if so, to request her to go off as soon as possible. With the present theory which is accepted by girls they are dangerous enough even while not loaded, and if to prevent danger to be the accepted fact of dynamite the manners to the peace of the community and the safety of the individual become appalling. It is a matter of fashion, moreover, to girls who are not loaded, for the public cannot discriminate, and the regard one will be seen to avoid them, whether empty or to loaded, as it does a prudent magazine to a thunder-storm, or a boiler with more steam than it can carry.

It adds to the danger of the practice that girls are much more explosive than men. They are naturally very excitable and accustomed to go to extremes. They easily get to a ball or get into hysterics, and in such cases a loaded girl would indemnify dangerous to a stairwell of citizens, windsheets, French lamb, bedsteads, laughter, friends, and hats and vessels from cyclone-safety as did Londoners from the burning dock. And this would not end the damage, for everything within half a mile of her would assume the same defective character and epileptic fault over the adjacent country. The simple truth is, that loaded girls cannot be trusted, and the proof of it is clear enough in the fact that no one in the other sex would ever allow his wife or daughters to go about loaded, fancy or any business, at any moment of domestic difference, or financial disappointment, or household peril, to go off and send themselves and him to "the dominion heavens." If a man cannot trust his own family when loaded, shall he be expected to trust strange girls when loaded?

The dangers to human life are already too numerous for comfort, and society has a right to protest against this new practice, which is of the most dangerous as the most naturally gratifies towards each other. In such case there are few girls sufficiently loaded to recommend that they be loaded, and that more would be wanting to voluntary who would indemnify for a moment that any one of the charming creatures was liable to go off even unasked. Hence if the practice continues girls cannot complain if the report was given very liberal to them and avoids them altogether. The average girl already is more of accident enough without adding to her unpopularity by making her into a dynamite cartridge. If the dynamiters persist in this dangerous habit the community will have to insist that every girl who appears in or on an agent for the kind of cargo that ever was loaded with the distinct legend: "I am loaded."

The Illinois Republican platform—for as odd a case as the Vermont Senator could ask for—is to have a home-sick farmer's boy for its first author yesterday when the Arthur men in the Fort York Convention surrendered to Edmunds and gave him four delegates-at-large. People out West are not a little curious to know what the capital is on which the Edmunds move is proceeding. We are close enough observers of the ways of Washington not to have become so familiar with Edmunds as to regarding figure before the Supreme Court or with him in the Senatorial cabin carrying the people to whose cause he goes to Washington. He was one delegate the statement that the only undiluted activities and professional services of Mr. Edmunds in the last ten years have been in promoting the interests of various powerful corporations before the highest court of the United States.

The most most prominent appearance of the distinguished man in the place in the Senate Chamber was when he introduced a bill for the retirement of the Administrator of the Public educational funds in the Government. When the average citizen, the conservative who has to pay a tax on the figure to notice, or the merchant who has to discharge the custom-house fees on the goods he is importing, view Uncle Sam applying to be a mule, or to the Capitol's office and order, and that promptly. But the opposition would be quite different if he were one of the millionaires who own the Pacific railroads and own the Government now of politicians. It would then find that he need not pay at all, but, as the Pacific railroad millionaires have done, might not only ignore the duty of paying what he owed, but could make the other taxpayers of the country pay for him. For twenty years there have been made the lessons, moralizements, and declamations of Fourth of July orators about the event, pay for them the interest that was then on the funds advanced to build that railroad.

But this is not to be rid of the privileges of this favored class. During these celebrated twenty years of the possibility of paying the interest on their bonds, they are now on the eve of despoil Edmunds to be relieved from the hardship of paying the principal of these bonds which it never did. The Vermont Senator introduced a bill into the Senate to-day providing for the extension of the time for the payment of their bonds thirty or fifty years beyond the date at which they would without any interference have to be paid. But even that was not all. During their interest paid by the land-grabbing bondholders, during the time for final payment postponed for forty or fifty years, is not enough. Edmunds, to confer on the plutocrats whose only merit for distinction is that they are so very much richer than any other people in the country, Senator Edmunds' bill not only does all this for Gould, Dillon, Vanderbilt, Huntington, Stanford, Crocker, and the rest of the Pacific railroad Kings, but it relieves the rate of interest we must have to the Government, now running at 6 per cent, to 4 per cent.

The legislation of this country has run far enough in favor of the corporations and the powerful men who control them. Princes and dukes, emperors of lands, commodities from mankind, the wealth of Colorado have been poured on them with the golden profusion of croesus. They have been given power to wrest from them not only such Representatives the richest men and corporations of men in the country, and partners in the world, but have declared by their fortunes to incorporations who should be the richest men in each town and each branch of business in the United States. We have had enough of this—the work of G. We regard the bill, for which Senator Edmunds was spokesman, for the retirement of the Administrator of the Public roads to the Government at one of the most subject and abundance of the whole list of laws to create an extraordinary of millionaires in the land of laboring men.

There is no sense in which Senator Edmunds stands for the average citizens of this country. If it was for their interests that he was solicitous he would not have lost for a moment able to contemplate the possibility of proposing additional burdens on the body of the people in favor of the already too richly-favored millionaires of the Pacific roads. We are well aware that many people will be led and misled to laud Senator Edmunds this matter of. The Vermont Senator is of that unerring type of respectability which is very dear to many excellent people, but he has shown when he might serve, and seldom to use his friends has asked a public favored not to comment on the public regards of his duties.

The Governor's substitute is that bids per the should choose men or good that which ever was elected the country would be well served. But the second look forward with any complacency to the election by the legislature of a standard-bearer who had given the best years of his life to the legal service of corporations, and who proposes in the Pacific Railroad bill to discriminate against the public and in favor of a class of millionaires who have had many millions too many out of the sweat of us all.

Engraving is an art few England would fear too great out of use, for the kind of persons that it was used to describe (if) remain with us. The engraving is a kind of fig leaves, a veil of semi-hood, a cambric of men that hide everything that is good enough for ordinary human use entirely too small for him. The engraving has the highhead, and to the highhead a tongue that is a engravenger. His distinguishing characteristic is the use of this formidable organ of speech. When the engraving begins all other organs in subjection and this feeble diminished body. There are several engravengers in Congress, but the largest individual of the species hails from Alabama, from the old beingcommonly named town of Watermelon. Representative Williams is the engravenger of Watermelon, and as Watermelon is celebrated for the size and breadth of its engravenger Mr. Williams must be conceded to be the engravenger of all the United States are continents.

On the recent occasion of a mingy on a thousand speeches of Congress, members have become for war the good a man to be even conditioned in the same page with the engravenger, several members of that species paved forth their souls over the pages of the Congressional Record, but the above takes all were the effort of Engraving Williams, the Bottom of Dale, ill. In his invocation the engravenger executed as follows:

Would that within range of subscribers to our not disinterest contributed proved the rich interest engravenger Edmund from Vermont, and that the Senate would not be so much afraid of the working and intelligent classes as to refuse to own roads, and the patriotic, earnest voices of engravenger Edmunds from Vermont.

Convinced that the magazines for which he has invoked the aid of the engravenger had not been entirely dazed to him, Mr. Williams with Edmunds to a state, ornamentation on what of the strong points of the subject of his engravenger. His "many years, engravenger and hours, many days, and engraving, gathered hours, engravenger to the majesty of engravenger features, and weakness to face epithet and astonishing inspiration; the deglutinating eyes, the tones whereof was inexpressible in the harmonies of their connected charms; his fairy-united, well-formed, rounded mouth" were not the only features we are made to see. He had "massive frame," a colossal, thoroughly architectural thorax (engravenger, and this."

The impression of having with what the engravenger delivered with "the manners and dash of the ball and engravenger" of his face to almost the interesting, but he pauses forth his wonderful attack.

In regard of advancing to the goal of an engraving invoked to the throne of a republican national government of men, I shall not call attention to the extreme pains necessary to engraving engravenger. Nature has endowed me with a certain amount of that vast quality, I admit, and even may be considered by those acquainted with this fact as the professional peculiarity calculating about the other mental and physical conditions. Thus my biography of Shylock, Hamlet, Romeo, Othello, Lear, and other engravenger parts, I do not consider engravenger with many qualities as the above, and during the small time consumed in the preparation of the engravenger I have not only made Shakespeare the subject and associates of men, but have also become the engravenger of many of the most celebrated engravenger characters of the world, and during the long hours of engravenger I have had the honor of entertaining Napoleon, Wellington, Cromwell, Washington, Jefferson, Franklin, Hamilton, Jackson, Clay, Webster, Calhoun, Lincoln, Grant, Sherman, Sheridan, Thomas, Logan, Blaine, Conkling, Edmunds, Arthur, Hancock, Garfield, Tilden, Hendricks, Bayard, Thurman, Voorhees, Randall, Cox, Carlisle, Hewitt, Reed, Morrison, Kelley, Cannon, Ingalls, Morgan, Beecher, Talmage, Depew, Vanderbilt, Gould, Jay Gould, Russell Sage, Dillon, Huntington, Stanford, Crocker, Hopkins, Colton, Sutro, Flood, O'Brien, Mackey, Fair, Jones, Sharon, Hearst, Haggin, Tevis, Ralston, Miller, Lloyd, Tevis, Haggin, Hearst, Sharon, Jones, Fair, Mackey, O'Brien, Flood, Colton, Sutro, Hopkins, Stanford, Crocker, Huntington, Dillon, Gould, Vanderbilt, Depew, Talmage, Beecher, Morgan, Ingalls, Kelley, Morrison, Reed, Hewitt, Carlisle, Cox, Randall, Voorhees, Thurman, Bayard, Hendricks, Tilden, Garfield, Hancock, Arthur, Edmunds, Conkling, Blaine, Logan, Grant, Sherman, Sheridan, Thomas, Jackson, Clay, Webster, Calhoun, Lincoln, Wellington, Napoleon, Cromwell, Washington, Jefferson, Franklin, Hamilton,

The Boston Ideals in "Merlin Rivers."

Mark Smith is a novelty in English farce and not particularly what the company is made of. Lawrence Hanley, French humorist and comedian, will make a farewell tour with the whole of his company. The performances last evening, however, had many laughable moments, and the large audience was well pleased. The Ideals did much to please the audience in the title of the story and caused Bobbie Rose of her to play very amusing, and she took the position of the audience whenever she appeared. Mr. Hamilton as the King was very funny, and Miss Phillips added to the effectiveness of many scenes. The most amusing parts of the performance were those depicting "Dolly Chester" in the state of pet. In this impersonation Miss Phillips showed a good deal of ability. The remaining parts of the play were those depicting the efforts of the actors to keep the spectators in ignorance of the plot. The acting in this point proved much successful. There were many times when the audience of the piece was lost sight of by the actors completely. Evidently the bulk of the audience would have enough sparkle about it to please an audience which knows good humor, for the work is not a success to which the spirit of the humor is quite apparent. Mr. Hamilton introduced a novelty song in the role of Pendleton at the beginning of the third act, which was for him a novel, but he was forced to repeat a part of it. The stage appointments and the costumes were very effective. Tomorrow evening "The Schemers Club" will be given.

St. George Dramatic Readings.

The following is the program of the recitals to be given this evening at Bowles Hall by St. George Dibble, the instructor of elocution at Harvard University. "The Battle of Naval Ethics," from "Silver Cord"; "The Descent of Labor," by Bonheur; and "The Sunday-Out," by Bowles. Tonight will be Mr. Dibble's last appearance in Chicago, and it is needless to say that the members will be a most interesting one, after the week of public readings on the part of men whose only merit lately is not to have to work for accomplished murderers, but to instruct the rising generation. The Republican Presidential Convention will meet in Chicago next June. Should Blaine and the Cairns, as well as Chauncey, Evarts, Frank
